Amy Costello, Project Director for the NH Institute for Health Policy and Practice was presented with the Staff Excellence Award on Thursday, May 2 during the College of Health and Human Services annual Spring Awards Luncheon. The Staff Excellence Award is an award given to a nominee who continues to demonstrate excellence and effectiveness in support of our students, faculty and staff.

Neil B. Vroman, Ph.D., Associate Dean for the college stated many of Amy’s accomplishments: “For 10 years, Amy Costello has been a leader; a leader at NHIHPP, CHHS, UNH, the State of New Hampshire, and at a national level. She was the co-author of “Prove-it”, a data instruction curriculum. Amy has played a key role in building institutional capacity to collect, synthesize, and analyze health data, addressing critical health care policy questions.

Amy was co-chair of the College Professional Development Committee. She’s taken the lead in moving the college and university towards HIPAA compliance.

Amy’s success is a function of her uncanny ability to build personal relationships at UNH and beyond. She comes to work and exhibits this excellence not for personal recognition, but because of a deep personal commitment for what she does.”

To read Amy’s bio, visit: http://chhs.unh.edu/nhihpp/staff/costello.html

To learn more about the event, visit: http://chhs.unh.edu/2013-spring-awards-celebration