ABOUT THE INSTITUTE FOR HEALTH POLICY AND PRACTICE

IHPP is an applied research and practice institute founded as a state-university partnership for more than twenty years. Our team conducts and disseminates high-quality, innovative, practice-based research and policy work that enables health system partners to implement evidence-based strategies to improve population health. We are especially focused on addressing inequities in our health and social care systems. Our team engages in meaningful work that advances the health and wellbeing of individuals and communities in the state, region, and country using reliable and actionable data to guide policy development and health systems change.

ABOUT UNH

The University of New Hampshire is one of four member institutions of the University System of New Hampshire (USNH). For 150 years, UNH has provided comprehensive, high-quality undergraduate programs and graduate programs of distinction, as New Hampshire's flagship public research University. Originally founded in 1866 as the New Hampshire College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, the University is one of only nine land-, sea-, and space-grant institutions in the nation. A major public university with a Carnegie Foundation Very High Research Activity (R1) classification, UNH offers its roughly 16,000 students thousands of courses in more than 100 major fields of study, in addition to a wide variety of minors, dual majors, Master's, and doctoral programs.
